Rampy voted Madison clerk-treasurer

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison Clerk-Treasurer Rick Berry has retired from that office and is being succeeded by Katie Rampy, who was elected Wednesday by Republican caucus.

Berry had submitted his letter of resignation in January, but later had second thoughts about resigning and forwarded a second letter to withdraw the resignation. For that to happen requires going before the caucus for a vote on whether to accept the withdrawal letter and precinct committee members voted 6-5 to not accept the withdrawal.

Rick Berry

Katie Rampy

Berry said his initial decision to resign followed the birth of his first grandchild, Lily, in October. He had spent time over the holidays with his daughter and her husband in Chicago, and enjoyed being able to see his granddaughter leading him want to spend more time with his family.

"I thought it would be nice to be able to spend time with my granddaughter anytime we wanted" but he said then after few days he had a "change of heart, and decided I wanted to go ahead and fulfill my term."

Berry, who is currently in Florida, made his case to the caucus in a conference call asking precinct committee members to accept his withdrawal letter. Afterwards, he said "a couple of people spoke in favor of me and another questioned what I was doing, and then they went to a blind vote, and it went 6-5 to not accept my withdraw."

Berry said he is "kind of disappointed" the caucus did not vote to accept the withdraw, "but I put myself in that position, so it's really my own fault." However, he did express that he was "shocked by the vote, but that's the way it works, and now I can just enjoy the good life" of retirement.

Berry was first elected clerk-treasurer in 2015 and then reelected in 2019 as the top vote-getter in that year's municipal election. Before that, he served two terms on Madison City Council and four years as the Council president.

Local officials thankful winter storm fell short of marks

BY MARK CAMPBELL

A winter storm that threatened to coat Jefferson County in a half-inch of ice before dumping up to 8 inches of snow fell well short of those marks Thursday and Friday but the county will remain in a "red" travel advisory until 8 a.m. today as the cleanup and melt-off continues.

"It was not as bad and not near as much snow as we expected," Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency Director Troy Morgan said on Friday. "The ice is still making things difficult and will remain so until the temperature gets above freezing, but we didn't have the widespread power outages we were expecting."

Morgan and other local officials and first responders had been planning for the storm for days and were as ready as possible for whatever the county received. He said the fact that residents responded to the official warnings and "behaved themselves" and "stayed off the roads" made for a lot less problems and softened the blow of what is the worst winter storm of the season so far.

"The main city, county and state roads are fairly decent," Morgan said just before noon on Friday. "The secondary roads are still slick and hazardous."

Mark Campbell

Indiana Department of Transportation road crews were out in force plowing roads after a wintery mixture of ice and snow fell throughout Thursday before giving over to snow Friday morning. Roads like Clifty Drive on Madison's hilltop (pictured) were either snow-covered or freshly plowed depending on how recently the trucks had made a pass.

Morgan said the "red" advisory — the level when all travel is limited to emergencies — will probably shift to "orange" this afternoon as temperatures rise and the melt begins. He said officials anticipate the county improving to "yellow" sometime on Sunday and back to "green" by Monday.

Hanging Rock Hill in Madison was closed to traffic and barricaded on Thursday afternoon and remained closed until about noon on Friday. There were a few slides offs and one vehicle reportedly overturned on US 421 near Camp Meeting Road north of Madison but no serious injuries were reported.

Madison Police Chief John Wallace, whose officers had to deal with the slick roads along with firefighters and EMTs in the event of emergencies, reached out to the road crews Friday and thanked them for their efforts.

"The Madison Police Department extends our sincere appreciation for the Street Department's professional effort during this ongoing winter event," Wallace said. "The dedication and effort put forth by the City of Madison Street Department has certainly made it easier for the MPD to do our job. Response time by Police, Fire and EMS saves lives. Thank you to (Supervisor) Tony (Sorrells) and his awesome team."

Winter storm closes courthouse so deadline now noon on Monday

BY BOB DEMAREE

With winter weather causing a closing of the Jefferson County Courthouse on Thursday and Friday, the deadline for candidates to file for the May 3 primary election has been extended to noon on Monday, Feb. 7.

Jefferson County Clerk Tabatha Eblen confirmed Friday morning the deadline extension, which had been previously been Friday at noon.

Man gets 18 years prison in bomb case

BY SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A Kentucky man has been sentenced to 18 years in the Indiana Department of Correction in connection with a case involving a bomb and bomb-making dating back to October 2020 in Jefferson County.

Jefferson County Prosecutor David R. Sutter said Cameron M. Kinser, 33, of Crestwood, was sentenced to 18 years with none suspended by Jefferson Circuit Judge DJ Mote on Wednesday.

Cameron M. Kinser

Kinser entered a guilty plea to a Level 2 felony charge of possession, transporting, receiving, placing or detonating a destructive device in January of 2021.

"This is a case that involved very dangerous activity and could easily have resulted in far more serious injuries or death," said Sutter.

He said the conviction was the result of multiple investigations involving Kinser making incendiary devices.

"I would like to acknowledge all of the law enforcement agencies involved in the investigations," Sutter said. "Thanks are extended to Indiana State Police Trooper Rick Stockdale with the ISP Explosive Ordnance Disposal Team. The Madison Police Department played a key role in the investigations. We appreciate the work of Detectives Kyle Cutshaw and Shawn Scudder as well as Patrolman Cameron Blankenship. I would also like to recognize the work of Chief Deputy Josh Taylor with the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department for his work in investigating Kinser."

Kinser pleaded guilty to a Jan. 27, 2021, incident in which an explosive device detonated inside an apartment, seriously injuring an occupant of the residence. The woman told police she found the device under her daughter's bed and was attempting to remove it from the home when she tripped and fell, resulting in it exploding in her face.

"The woman sustained serious facial and eye injuries as a result of the blast," said Sutter. "There were also two juveniles inside the apartment, along with four other adults. Fortunately, this incident did not turn out as badly as it could have."

Further investigation revealed that Kinser was known to make explosive devices and to frequent the victim's home. When police searched the dumpster outside the apartment where they were told the bomb had been placed, they located it.

Police were able to locate and interview subjects who had knowledge of Kinser's involvement in manufacturing explosive devices and who had witnessed such items in his possession.

The person told police her car window was damaged by an explosion and that Kinser admitted to having been responsible for it.

This wasn't the first time Kinser had been linked to explosive devices, said Sutter. The investigations began in October of 2020 when an undetonated explosive device was found at the intersection of US 421 and SR 250 near Madison. In January 2021, officers were called to a Madison residence where they located a destructive device which the homeowner said belonged to Kinser.

Kinser has been incarcerated at the Jefferson County Jail since his arrest. He will begin serving his sentence immediately at the Indiana Department of Correction.

Firefighters battle two barn fires

Weather conditions made task more difficult

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Firefighters battled challenging weather conditions while fighting two fires on Thursday in Jefferson County.

Shortly after 8 a.m. on Thursday fire was reported at a barn owned by Tim Boldery in the 6000 block of 500N in Lancaster Township. Kent Fire Department Chief Brett Roberts said it was a livestock barn with 15 animals, mostly sheep and goats, with none of the animals surviving. He speculated that the fire was caused by an electrical issue but the barn was "too far damaged to determine where it actually started." He also noted the scene was not safe to thoroughly investigate because the barn roof had collapsed.

Firefighters battled the blaze for more than three hours — the weather conditions making it more difficult — and the barn was a "total loss."

"We were fighting with the wind and the temperatures, freezing rain and sleet," he said.

The second fire was reported at approximately 8 p.m. on Thursday in the 6000 block of Interstate Block Road in Republican Township at a barn owned by Tom Wynn.

Kent Assistant Chief Charlie Foster said firefighters battled the blaze for nearly three hours and the barn was a "total loss."

Foster said the structure contained woodworking items, and the prevalence of wood added to challenge in addition to weather conditions.

Kent Fire Department received assistance on both fires from Hanover Township, Madison Township, Dupont and Deputy fire departments.

Distillery plans for Hanover progress

BY BOB DEMAREE

Plans for Lanthier Winery's Artisan distillery retail and production facility are moving forward, co-owner Tami Hagemier said in an update to the Hanover Town Council at its meeting Tuesday.

"This has been a great opportunity for the winery," said Hagemier, who operates Lanthier Winery with her husband, Chris Lanthier, and is expanding their Madison operations to Hanover. "We appreciate all that the town is doing to help us to move that along. It certainly has been a pleasure working with you folks."

In October, a zoning change was adopted by the town council to permit the new business to locate at 431 W. Lagrange Road, Hanover. Hagemier informed the council that paperwork was signed Monday to officially transfer the property to the winery that had been owned by Auxier Investments.

Hagemier said the winery will be receiving an Advanced Manufacturing grant from the Indiana Economic Development Commission to help purchase "cutting edge equipment" for Lanthier Winery's expansion into Hanover. She characterized it as a "special still for the distillery that's outside the normal distillery type of equipment" that will distilled spirits in a "different manner that's more efficient than what's currently in general practice in the distilling industry ... It's brand-new technology so we're really excited."

Hagemier noted the grant is a result of Lanthier Winery's investment in Hanover, "and the state wanting to support those kinds of businesses that are doing that." She said they are awaiting official confirmation on the amount of the grant.

"It's been nothing but good news since we partnered with you," Hagemier told the town council.

"Congratulations to you on the grant, and we're honored to have you here," said Council member Treva Shelton.

Clerk-Treasurer Keith Mefford provided an update that efforts are moving forward for a sewer line extension to the new Lanthier facility that will also be accessible to a nearby proposed 90-acre development. He said work on the extension will begin "once the weather breaks."

In other business:

• Mefford gave an update on Duke Energy's work to replace the town's 152 street lights with LEDs. He said the town is currently paying $1,340.60 per month for the existing lights, but once Duke replaces all of the town's lights with LED the monthly charge will be lowered to $1,021.51. Duke Energy will also provide a rebate of $4,680.

There was another option in which the town would pay $66,000 for the new lights, or choose payment plans to pay that off. Mefford said it would take 27 years for the options to even out, so he expressed the first option as best alternate because "who knows what the next technology will be in the next 27 years."

No decision was made but a decision is expected at an upcoming town council meeting.

• Town Marshal Shane Caldwell reported that the police force had 186 calls for service, 12 arrests, 34 warnings and 11 citations in January. He said they are working toward getting a third automated external defibrillators (AED) device so that all three full-time officers will carry one in their partol car. Caldwell noted the majority of the arrests in January were drug-related.

• Agreed to expand the number of members for town committees to up to 10, but emphasized the need to have a process in which they all report regular updates to the town council, along with requiring approval for all committee members by the town council. The council has most recently created a park committee and a beautification committee, and is in the process of creating a Go Green committee. There is also a committee for the Tinsel Twinkle Trail, which could become a subcommittee of the park committee.

• Board member Debbie Kroger gave a report on planning for the second annual Tinsel Twinkle Trail in December 2022 to include a community reading program that would provide free books for children. Additionally, Hagemier, who has also been involved in coordinating the Tinsel Twinkle Trail through donation of lights and other contributions, said there has been discussion to expand the Holly Jolly Santa Celebration beyond the Friday and Saturday event activities that occurred this past December to also have a Candy Cane Hunt in the Community Park. Additionally, there are plans to provide a ball for each child. Hagemier said the committee has "met or exceeded all of its goals," and seems ready for more possibilities. "The committee hasn't lost its steam and still has a lot of energy," she said.

Animal shelter reporting more manageable populations

BY BOB DEMAREE

Now in her third month as director of the Jefferson County Animal Shelter, Lindsay Stultz-Weyer reported a more manageable animal population at the shelter and the setting of regular shelter hours at Wednesday's advisory board meeting.

"There's still a lot to learn," said Stultz-Weyer. "We're going to take it one day at a time but we're going to get there, but it's not going to happen overnight."

Stultz-Weyer noted she came from animal control in her previous work at Switzerland County, and is now learning the administration part of the position.

"I think you're doing a remarkable job in just a short time," said Commissioner Bobby Little, vice president of the advisory board.

Stultz-Weyer said the shelter will be regularly open to the public beginning Feb. 15 on Tuesdays and Thursdays from noon to 5 p.m. and Saturdays from noon to 4 p.m. She said the facility will then gradually work toward having open hours every day.

She reported a shelter population of 25 cats, with three pre-adopted waiting for owners to pick up. There are 28 dogs including a female with her puppies.

Stultz-Weyer said the national Betty White Challenge fundraiser brought $4,511.66 to the animal shelter, along with new donation funds established at the start of the year with $2,609.66 for non-designated general, $1,395 for spay/neuter sponsorships, $1,010 for rabies/general medical; and $407 for general shelter supplies.

Board member Warren Auxier spoke of the need to direct donation spending more toward capital projects, rather than operational costs.

"I absolutely appreciate the donations, but I would like to see them used more toward capital improvements, maybe a special piece of equipment," he said. "I don't want to see us get in to position where we're relying on donations for day-to-day operations of the shelter."

Auxier noted those operational expenses should be financed through fees or funds coming from the county and city. "You have to have a budget you can count on that's going to be there," he said.

One project Stultz-Weyer proposed at Wednesday's meeting is developing fencing that will provide space for animals to run.

"We have some really amazing dogs that would be even more amazing if they could burn some energy off," she said.

In other discussions, the board plans to schedule work sessions to review animal shelter policies. "This advisory board is set in place for a reason, and I think you guys should have input on the policies that go on at the shelter," said Stultz-Weyer.

The board established two work sessions with a third meeting for public input. The public is allowed to attend all meetings and Auxier said public input should allowed at those meetings too because "it's much easier if there's something that stands out to the public to hear it at the time, you're putting the policy together."

Auxier was the lone no vote against the work session schedule for reviewing the animal shelter policies.

Stultz-Weyer provided an update on a pop-up neuter clinic for cats Sunday, March 6, at the Madison Senior Center, 208 West Main St., in downtown Madison. Pet Friendly Services of Indiana is partnering with Public Vet and so far there are 45 animals signed up. The clinics allows for up to 140 appointments, but Stultz-Weyer noted if all the appointments aren't filled that Jefferson County can partner with another county to host the event.

"This first one is a test run on that to see how many sign up," she said. If there are not enough "we could switch off" locations, citing, for example, if partnering with Switzerland County, the event could alternate between Jefferson and Switzerland counties.

How to get my BFF to stop walking all over me

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: Two years ago, I lost my husband to terminal cancer after 30 years of marriage. I kept him at home during his final days with the help of hospice and our three children.

Throughout this terrible time of my life, my BFF (best friend forever) was supportive, loving and available to listen to my fears and range of emotions. Being a widow herself, she understood exactly what I was going through. After my husband passed, she spent two weeks with me at my home. She was like an angel, there for me in my time of need.

During this time, I foolishly told her about the large insurance policy that my husband left to me. We have become even closer and spend time together going out to eat and shop on a weekly basis. In order to thank her, last fall, I invited her on a four-day trip to San Francisco, paying for her airline tickets and lodging. She went even though it meant leaving her second husband and family alone.

I have recently decided to rent a beachfront house in Texas for four months this winter. When I told her that I would love for her to visit, she immediately became very excited and said yes. It has now become very apparent that she is planning on spending the entire four months with me at my expense.

I have invited other girlfriends at different intervals to visit for three to five days and look forward to hosting them and having a fun getaway. I just found out that she has been inviting her children and grandchildren to visit her, too, but not her husband. I am feeling very taken advantage of and becoming resentful of her assuming the depth of my generosity. I am concerned about this destroying our friendship if I try to discuss it with her or by just giving in. Either way, I lose. What should I do, Annie? — The Lost Friend

Dear Lost Friend: Firstly, I am so sorry for the loss of your husband. I can only imagine how difficult that must have been after a decades-long marriage. I am glad you had the love and support of your children and the friend you mentioned to move through your grief.

Your best friend went above and beyond after your husband's passing, and I imagine she knows just how much you appreciated it since she experienced a spouse's loss herself. But friendship isn't a scorecard. Her overwhelming kindness two years ago does not entitle her to be a part of everything you have and do now.

Since your husband's death, you've done plenty to thank her for her support. Now it's time to draw a line in the sand. Your BFF may not fully realize she's taking advantage of you, so it'll be your responsibility to communicate to her what is and isn't OK and to stick to it. You have to honor yourself.

Let her know when it works for you for her to visit the Texas beach house this winter. Emphasize that this hiatus is meant for more than just the two of you but also for you and your children, you and your other girlfriends and most importantly, you and yourself.

Son is stuck with abusive wife

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My son has not spoken to me for eight years. He married a woman he met online in a matter of six months. I was very hesitant about his jumping into a marriage so quickly with a stranger. I'm a mother who wants a happy life for her children.

About eight years ago, I had surgery and texted my son to ask why he hadn't come to see me or called. I got a response back, but it was not from my son; it was from his wife. This is what she said: "Well, he has a family now, and we come first, and he'll get to you when he can." After that, she and I exchanged a few words over text.

So, later that evening, I went over to talk to my son in person about the disrespect that his wife displayed, and he pretty much sided with her. I know she is his wife, but I'm his mother. He stopped talking to me after that and relocated to Florida. But now he's back in the same city where I live.

I heard that he had a mental breakdown, and I called him at the hospital to offer my support. During the last time I spoke with him before he was released, he said his wife told him that she had a dream about my wishing that he would not get well.

That really upset me, and after he was released from the hospital, he cut off all contact with me again. He now lives with my daughter. I'm not speaking to my daughter because she has them living in her house. I just feel like they have betrayed me when all this time I've been a mother and father to them. Can you please help me move ahead, Annie? Thank you. — Wanting Contact

Dear Wanting: The best way to move ahead is to take a step back — and look at the big picture. Your son is in an abusive relationship, and his wife is using your family as the scapegoat and saying that you are the cause of all problems, when, after being married to her for eight years, he ended up having a mental breakdown. The real question is, why does he allow his wife to say such terrible things about you and force him to cut ties with you?

Continue to reach out to your son in a loving and understanding way. Try to put your hurt feelings aside and see that he is the one really hurting now. It does not feel good to be disconnected from your parents and cut them out completely. He is hurting.

On top of that, you are being too hard on your daughter. Your children are not betraying you; they are surviving as best they can with the life situation they are in at the moment. Congratulate yourself that you were able to raise two siblings who love each other enough to help the other one out when they are having a tough time, which is exactly what your son is having. He needs to stick up to his wife, but he won't be able to do that with low self-esteem. Until then, he will let this abusive woman continue to drive him into mental breakdowns. Support your son — he needs your help now more than ever — and don't demand or ask anything of him. Just tell him you are there for him when he needs you and how much you love him.

"He's served the city well and done a good job. He's such a patriot," said Jefferson County Republican Chairman Pam Crozier.

Berry said he enjoyed his service to the city and was especially proud of being able to establish the Jon Menke Award given annually for military service. GOP leaders also mentioned Berry's legacy of spearheading the local Tea Party movement, co-hosting the Rick and Rick at Night Radio Show and his participation in the Jefferson County Republican Party.

The 11 city precinct committee members then selected Rampy from the two candidates who filed necessary paperwork for the office in the timeline established by state code and party rules. Tammy Boldery, who currently works in the clerk-treasurer's office, was the other candidate seeking the office.

Rampy, who most recently has been the City Council President, has served on City Council since 2017 when she was appointed to represent the Fourth District to complete the term of Troy Morgan after he was named Jefferson County Emergency Management Director. Rampy was then elected in the 2019 municipal election. She has worked as a State Eligibility Manager for the Indiana Division of Family Resources for the past 28 years.

In her introduction speech to the caucus, Rampy said, "With an eye toward the future, I will provide the leadership needed to maintain the integrity of the city's fiscal matters, but also search for ways to improve the management of the office." She added that she "will not only improve office operations but will continue to be involved in supporting the Republican Party, furthering its goals for both the city and county."

"I would like to congratulate Katie Rampy on her selection as Madison's Clerk-Treasurer," Madison Mayor Bob Courtney said. "While Katie will no longer be City Council President, her role in serving the City of Madison will be even greater as Clerk-Treasurer. I would also like to thank Rick Berry for his service to the community. Over the past 15 years, Rick has been a community leader working closely with three administrations and was in his second term as Clerk-Treasurer. I wish him luck as he is looking forward to retiring and spending more time with family. I also want to thank our city council and city staff in working together in making this transition as smooth as possible."

Crozier said the next order of business will be to replace Rampy on City Council and a caucus of precinct committee members in Council District 4 will be scheduled sometime this month to choose her replacement.

Additionally, Madison City Council will hold another election among its members to name a new City Council president to serve the remainder of 2022.

Layin It On The Line

By Stephen Dybwad
Retirement Planning/
Wealth Management

The world has gone digital, so have your assets and much of your personal information. Cybercriminals are aware of this shift but are also mindful of how ill-prepared many people are when protecting themselves in the online world. While cybersecurity might seem complex, a little bit of common sense will go a long way in minimizing the threats that could expose you.

Beware before you share.

Limit the amount of personal information you share online, including birthdays, addresses, account numbers and passwords, and your Social Security number. If a government agency contacts you asking for your government-issued ID, verify the request by contacting the agency. Scammers like to pose as the IRS and other agencies in hopes of convincing their targets to share valuable personal data. If you encounter one of these scams, you should terminate Contact immediately and report it to the proper authorities.

Shop smart, shop safely.

These days, nearly all of America shops online. Sadly, many unscrupulous websites out there fail to handle your data with the level of care it deserves. This leaves your data vulnerable to hackers that use these sites to steal credit card information in hopes of making a quick buck. It's essential to shop at reputable online stores only. Look for badges of Trust and read independent reviews so you can gain a sense of a website's credibility.

Security Software

Anti-virus software and firewalls provide an added layer of defense and should remain on at all times. Sensitive information stored on a device should be encrypted and backed up if it is compromised by malware. When choosing passwords, make sure that they are complex and unique to every account. It would help if you also made sure all devices sharing a network with yours use anti-virus software.

Stay safe while using public Wi-Fi.

Public Wi-Fi is available in most stores and restaurants, but connecting to these networks could be risky. If you must connect to public Wi-Fi, use a virtual private network, and avoid viewing sensitive information or making bank transactions.

Know the signs of a scam

It is important to stay in the know about trending scams. There are, however, red flags that are common to a wide range of scams.

An attempt to gain trust by impersonating a government agency or familiar contact

Contact from out of the blue claiming a problem or prize

Scammers use emotional appeal in an attempt to create urgency; they may pressure you with jail time or other penalties

Unusual requests regarding the method of payment, you might be asked to use a money transfer company or purchase pre-loaded gift cards so you can provide them with the number on the back

Be wary of familiar contacts requesting personal information. A popular scamming tactic is to gain access to the account of someone you may know or trust. The scammer will then message you to get personal information or money from you.

Re-energized Cubs pull away in OT

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

RAMSEY — For most teams, blowing a double-digit lead to an underdog and being forced to go to overtime in a tournament game would be cause for panic. For Madison's Lady Cubs it was just a chance to hit the reset button.

Madison allowed host North Harrison to climb back into the game and force overtime but the Cubs dominated the extra session, pulling away for a 44-38 victory in the opening round of the Class 3A Sectional at North Harrison on Wednesday.

Cadence Traylor and Cameran Cahall scored four points each in the overtime as Madison outscored the Lady Cats 8-2 over the four-minute session. The Cubs will face fourth-ranked Silver Creek in the postponed semifinals tonight.

David Campbell

"We went to the locker room like, you know what, we've got to celebrate these wins. It wasn't what we wanted but a win's a win and I'll take it. Survive in advance," Madison coach Sonja Bowyer said. "I know (North Harrison) went on that losing streak at the end of the season, but you could tell on game film that they were starting to figure it out. You could tell that this was going to be a tough one."

Madison (12-8) dominated the first half of play and was a few baskets away from potentially knocking the Cats out. The Cubs' hyperactive defensive pressure forced North Harrison into just 3-of-20 shooting in the first half and Madison built a 17-6 lead late in the second quarter.

But the knockout punch never came. Madison's intensity on defense also wore the Cubs down physically and, after a few unanswered baskets in the third quarter, North Harrison was back in the game.

The final 12 minutes of the contest were a fight. North Harrison (9-13) tied the score 23-23 on a Diana Burgher basket and

Freshmen lead Hanover women to dominant win over Anderson

BY JORDAN BEAR

If Hanover women's basketball can get the kind of performance out of its team that it got on Wednesday, the Panthers can beat just about anybody.

Hanover was dominant from start to finish while cruising past Anderson 77-57 at home on Wednesday night. The Panthers were led by three freshmen in scoring and got 23 points off the bench in one of the more complete games they have played this season.

"The biggest difference between Saturday and tonight with two equal opponents that we played was the complete balance in scoring," Hanover coach John Jones said. "The starters, the players off the bench, it was just a complete game from the team. Saturday, we got outscored in a big way off the bench. Tonight, it was just a complete performance from everyone on the roster."

Hanover was on fire from the start, as two freshmen, Taylor Heath and Grace Bezold, paced the Panthers to a seven-point lead at the end of the first quarter. The second quarter was just as dominating for Hanover as it increased its lead to 40-25 by halftime.

Anderson, led by one of the best players in the conference in Lexi Dellinger, did cut that margin to 10 at one point in the second half, the Ravens could never get any closer as Hanover cruised to victory.

Stephanie Hellmann

Dellinger did finish with 12 points, but the defense of Hanover freshman guard Katherine Benter kept the Ravens' leading scorer in check.

"Katherine Benter not only had 13 points tonight, she also kept Dellinger in check," Jones said. "She gets the toughest assignment defensively a lot of times and she just keeps getting better and better. I'm really proud that she has stepped up how she has."

Hanover was led in scoring by Taylor Heath with 17 points, while Grace Bezold had 14 points, Benter scored 13 and Liz Tynan added 10 points. The Ravens were led by Peyton Moore with 19 points while Jade Shipley had 13 points.

The win gives Hanover a season sweep over Anderson, which could be big as a potential tiebreaker for the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference tournament. Jones knows how big these games are down the stretch for all teams.

"I did something I've never done before and that's put the standings on the board in the locker room," Jones said. "We've got a lot of home games down the stretch and we have a chance to get out of the five or six seed and get up to the three or four seed. We want to be able to try and host a first round game in the conference tournament. We have some big games coming up and the team has to be ready to play. Hopefully we're starting to get into a groove and can be dangerous at the end of the season."

Burrow didn't want to be a QB

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Joe Burrow didn't want to be a quarterback.

When the Bengals star signal-caller started out in football as a third-grader, he reasoned that since there wasn't much passing at that level he'd get more action and contact as a running back or receiver.

"I didn't pick quarterback," Burrow said Thursday. "I got to my first peewee practice and the coach at the time, coach Sam Smathers — I still see him all the time when I go back home — he basically asked me if I wanted to be quarterback, and I said, 'No, not really.' But then he said 'Well, you're gonna be quarterback. Too bad.'"

Smathers doesn't specifically recall forcing Burrow to be the quarterback in his Wing-T offense, but he might have. It was a no-brainer, though, especially after he found out that little Joey was the son of Jimmy Burrow, who was the then-defensive coordinator under Frank Solich at Ohio University.

"We had a couple other kids who were bigger and could play the position, but the knowledge and football IQ I noticed in him at that age was pretty amazing," said the 56-year-old Smathers, who lives across the street from the high school football field in Athens that has been renamed Joe Burrow Stadium. "Then I found out who his dad was. Coming from a football family like that, I can understand where he's getting it.

"He could remember the plays, the timing came easy with him, then we found out he could throw the ball really well," Smathers said. "That's basically how it started — he had a good football IQ even in third grade."

Mintz has 21 points as No. 5 Kentucky beats Vanderbilt 77-70

BY GARY B. GRAVES

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky had to fight for everything it got against Vanderbilt, and Davion Mintz helped deal the biggest blow for the No. 5 Wildcats.

Mintz scored a season-high 21 points off the bench, hitting a 3-pointer during a pivotal 11-2 run, and Kentucky overcame nearly blowing a double-digit lead and its cool to survive Vanderbilt 77-70 on Wednesday night for its third consecutive victory.

After having it surprisingly easy on Saturday at then-No. 5 Kansas, Mintz wasn't shocked by the battle it got from Vanderbilt. Even affable forward Oscar Tshiebwe got caught in the moment, drawing two flagrant fouls among four.

"When teams come in here, they want to play hard," said Mintz, who hinted at having scratches on his arm going for a rebound. "The SEC is a competitive conference and Vanderbilt came to fight and so does every other team we play in this conference."

The Wildcats (18-4, 7-2 Southeastern Conference) twice led by 10 in the second half, but the Commodores eventually closed to 56-53 with 9:28 remaining. Keion Brooks Jr. answered with a jumper, Lance Ware made a free throw and Mintz took Sahvir Wheeler's baseline pass to make a wide-open 3 from the right corner for a 62-53 advantage with 7:23 remaining.

Kentucky's Oscar Tshiebwe (17 rebounds, 11 points) followed Scotty Pippen Jr.'s basket with three free throws before TyTy Washington Jr.'s jumper off made it 69-57. Mintz added two free throws as Kentucky earned its 11th consecutive series victory over the Commodores.

Mintz was the latest Kentucky player to score at least 20 points in a game this season.

"Davion played unbelievable today," coach John Calipari said. "Really, really good. And you know who was happy for him? TyTy (Washington). Hugged him. That's what this team has been."

Pippen had 33 points for his second 30-point outing this season against Kentucky, making 11 of 23 from the field. Jordan Wright had 14 points for the Commodores (11-10, 3-6), who sought their first win over Kentucky since 2016. Vanderbilt was coming off a season sweep of Georgia.

Mintz made 4 of 7 from deep and 6 of 11 overall. Brooks followed up his career-high 27 points at then-No. 5 Kansas by making 7 of 15 from the field and 6 of 8 free throws.

The second half was tense and chippy, with Kentucky's Tshiebwe twice whistled for flagrant-1 fouls and Vandy's Jamaine Mann called for one. Wildcats coach John Calipari drew a technical foul in the first half before Commodores counterpart Jerry Stackhouse picked up one after halftime.

"I thought our guys were battling hard, just wanted to make sure we gave ourselves a fair chance to win the game," Stackhouse said.

"We had a stretch in there that we were playing hard, and I didn't feel like our guys were getting the benefit of the doubt, so I'm going to always ride for my guys and make sure that they know I'm supporting them in their effort."

Vanderbilt wasn't done despite digging a halftime hole with 11 turnovers. They got out of their own way and twice rallied to within a possession after halftime but couldn't finish.

Kentucky faced more resistance from Vandy than at Kansas and had to work harder for looks. The Wildcats shot just 28% in the second half as a result, but got a huge basket with Mintz's 3 off a beautiful feed from Wheeler. They finished 39% shooting.

Bengals hope Burrow-Chase connection produces Super Bowl win

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Joe Burrow and Ja'Marr Chase keep making history together.

Since the two became teammates in 2018 at LSU, they have played in seven postseason games and won every one, breaking NCAA and NFL records along the way.

If the duo can extend the streak by one more game, they will be Super Bowl champions.

Their postseason stretch together includes 4-0 in two seasons at LSU, including the 2019 national championship game win over Clemson.

Then, as Cincinnati Bengals teammates in receiver Chase's rookie season, they won three nail-biting playoff games in three weeks on the way to the team's first Super Bowl in 33 years.

The way Bengals offensive coordinator Brian Callahan saw it, the duo picked up where they left off at LSU and just keep getting better together.

"You can see it and feel it," Callahan said. "They know how to communicate with each other."

Burrow came in as the top overall draft pick in 2020 after winning the national championship and Heisman Trophy. A knee injury cut short his NFL rookie season as the Bengals finished 4-11-1, last in the AFC North.

Chase was the fifth overall pick in the 2021 draft after sitting out the 2020 season because of COVID-19 concerns. In 2018 and '19, he and Burrow had combined for 107 receptions for 2,093 yards and 23 touchdowns.

This season, the Bengals (13-7) won the AFC North as Chase racked up more receiving yards than any rookie in the Super Bowl era (1,455) and set the single-season record for the franchise. Burrow completed 70% of his passes for 4,611 yards and 34 TDs, 13 of them to Chase.

"I think we just have a lot of reps accumulated together," Burrow said. "It's all about how many times you throw a certain route with a guy and however many times you can talk through certain looks that you might see on that route from the defender, whether he's high hip or low hip or inside or outside. We just have probably more reps accumulated than a lot of people do."

Chase put it this way: "Sometimes Joe might not even look at me, and I know what he's thinking."

Chase's biggest moment of the season might have been a clutch catch as the clock wound down in the divisional-round playoff game against Tennessee on Jan. 22.

With the score tied, Cincinnati linebacker Logan Wilson intercepted Ryan Tannehill at the Bengals 47 with 20 seconds remaining.

Cincinnati had to get into field-goal range to win it in regulation. On the next play, Burrow hit Chase down the right sideline for 19 yards to the Tennessee 34. Three plays later, rookie Evan McPherson split the uprights with a 52-yarder as time ran out for a 19-16 win.

Last week, the Bengals dethroned the Kansas City Chiefs as AFC champions with a 27-24 overtime victory, again decided by McPherson's field goal.

"Everything's an opportunity," Chase said. "We keep having opportunities in front of us, and we keep taking advantage of it."

Coach Zac Taylor said he doesn't really know how Burrow and Chase do what they do, he just hopes they can come up with more big plays as the Bengals face the Los Angeles Rams in the Super Bowl Feb. 13.

NASCAR goes to L.A. as Super Bowl warmup

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

LOS ANGELES — NASCAR is hitting Los Angeles a week ahead of the Super Bowl, grabbing the spotlight with its wildest idea yet: The Clash, the unofficial season-opening, stock-car version of the Pro Bowl, will run at the iconic Coliseum in a made-for-Fox Sports spectacular.

Yes, that's correct. A temporary track has been built inside the Coliseum, where race cars will rattle around a quarter mile of asphalt carefully laid over the grass field that has hosted two summer Olympics, the USC Trojans and the hometown Rams for four seasons until their new stadium opened in 2020.

The first Super Bowl in 1967 was played at the Coliseum, but the Rams will play for the NFL championship 10 miles away at Sofi Stadium a week from Sunday. NASCAR is offering an appetizer with its season-opening event, until now raced every year since its 1979 inception at Daytona International Speedway in Florida.

Run under different formats with different presenting sponsors over the years, The Clash was the opening event of Speed Weeks and a warmup for the Daytona 500 — NASCAR's own version of Super Bowl. But NASCAR has been willing to look beyond cookie-cutter tracks in traditional markets.

Ben Kennedy, NASCAR's senior vice president of strategy and innovation, brainstormed moving The Clash exhibition out of Daytona for the first time and instead stage it as a Hollywood event not all that far from Hollywood. The Busch Light Clash will run Sunday night, heat races will set the field, DJ Skee will play during cautions and Ice Cube will headline a halftime show.

No. 4 Purdue beats Gophers 88-73

BY TYLER MASON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MINNEAPOLIS — Jaden Ivey scored 21 points and Zach Edey added a double-double of 14 points and 12 rebounds, leading No. 4 Purdue to an 88-73 win over Minnesota on Wednesday night.

Senior guard Eric Hunter Jr. added a career-high 20 points and the Boilermakers got double-figure scoring from four players. Hunter entered the contest averaging 4.3 points.

Purdue (19-3, 8-3 Big Ten) has won four straight and seven of its last eight games.

While the Boilermakers excelled near the rim, scoring 40 points in the paint, Purdue also hit 12 of 24 shots from 3-point range in handling the Gophers.

"Like any other game, we're going to try to establish our size," Purdue head coach Matt Painter said. "Just the balance of getting deep post-ups, getting ready to shoot, seeing how they're going to handle those post-ups, and then just executing our sets."

Payton Willis scored 24 points and Jamsion Battle added 21 for Minnesota (11-8, 2-8), which lost its third straight.

Purdue followed up its dramatic last-second win over Ohio State with a comfortable road victory. The Gophers briefly made things interesting in the second half before running out of steam.

Edey scored nine of his points in the first four minutes, and the Boilermakers started 8 of 8 from the floor.

"It really comes from setting the tone right from the beginning on my first shift, just from the tipoff," Edey said. "It creates a gravity almost towards me where, for the rest of the game, I can kick out to other people. Other people were getting wide-open layups because they didn't want to help off me."

As Minnesota began to double-team Edey, he found teammates as Purdue's inside-out game thrived. Edey had three assists and also drew eight fouls.

Hunter was 4 of 6 from 3-point range to lead all Boilermakers from deep. He has scored in double figures in three of Purdue's last four games.

"It's always good to get career highs, especially on the road when usually you don't play your best on the road on the offensive side," Hunter said.

Minnesota cut Purdue's 15-point halftime lead to seven after five straight points by Treyton Thompson that made it 63-56. The Gophers couldn't get any closer as Purdue began making stops on defense.

"We're never going to look at the score and be like, 'Oh, we're out of this game,' " Battle said. "We saw we were down 18 today. We fought back and we tried to make it a game, and I thought we did make it a game."

Minnesota threatened one last time, with four minutes remaining. Battle hit a 3-pointer from the corner to make it a 10-point game, but Purdue's Trevion Williams found a cutting Ivey for an easy dunk to answer.

"They're a good team, talented team," Willis said of Purdue. "They've obviously got some huge guys inside and got some wings that can shoot the ball really well."

Minnesota limited Williams. The Boilermakers' third-leading scorer didn't have a point until a free throw early in the second half. He finished with five points and three fouls in 13 minutes.

Minnesota's Eric Curry came off the bench in his second game back from an ankle injury. He struggled from the floor with 1-for-7 shooting.

BIG PICTURE

Purdue: The Boilermakers continued to show the depth that has led to a top-5 ranking. Three players were in double-figures at halftime in Purdue's road win.

Minnesota: The Gophers fell to 0-5 this season against ranked teams, including losses against ranked opponents in their last three games. Wednesday's game was the most lopsided of the five.

Harris rallies Magic to 119-118 win

BY MARK AMBROGI
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Gary Harris scored 22 points and Wendell Carter Jr. had 19 points and 18 rebounds to rally the Orlando Magic past the Indiana Pacers 119-118 on Wednesday night.

Harris scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, including two key 3-pointers. He finished 6 of 11 from beyond the arc and thought his team played with more energy in the second half.

"We able to lock down on the defensive end, share the ball, make shots and get a win the second half," Harris said. "I feel like that's the team we are. We're resilient. We always keep fighting. These guys are hungry, they love to play basketball, they compete every day. It's a fun group to play with."

Harris said Carter played like a beast.

"When Wendell is being aggressive, there are not many people in the league that can stop him," Harris said. "We need that from him every night."

Indiana led by 17 midway through the third, but the margin had dwindled to two by the end of the quarter. Orlando outscored the Pacers 33-21 in the period.

"The third quarter was the killer," Indiana coach Rick Carlisle said. "We did a lot of other good things through the course of the game. The third quarter was our undoing."

Caris LeVert led the Pacers with 26 points, and rookie Terry Taylor posted his first career double-double with 24 points and 16 rebounds. Torrey Craig added 22 points.

Harris hit consecutive 3s to tie it at 108 with 1:50 left. Cole Anthony then stole the ball and made two free throws to give the Magic their first lead.

Franz Wagner's three-point play put Orlando in front for good at 113-110. Wagner finished with 17 points.

"They kept getting it to the rim," Carlisle said. "They were aggressive and got it going downhill."

Indiana led 81-64 midway through the third before the Magic scored eight straight points to cut it to 86-80. They tied it at 88 early in the fourth.

"I'm so proud of these guys, playing three games in four nights and back-to-back — they show their resilience," Orlando coach Jamahl Mosley said. "Every guy was a part of it. We continued to compete at a high level through the end of the game."

Indiana sank 10 of 19 3-pointers in the first half to lead 67-53 at halftime. The Pacers shot 54.2% in the first half while the Magic hit 44.9% from the field.

Taylor's contributions were needed as Pacers rookie forward Isaiah Jackson left the game in the first 30 seconds with a right ankle sprain. He went straight to the locker room and wasn't able to return.

It was Taylor's sixth game, as he has played most of the season in the G League. Carlisle said Jackson was limping after the game but didn't need a walking boot.

TIP-INS

Magic: Harris, who is from the Indianapolis suburb of Fishers, cracked 20 points for the first time since scoring 28 on Jan. 8 against Detroit. "It's always good to come home and get a win in front of family and friends," he said. ... Anthony's shooting woes continued as he shot just 2 of 15. He is shooting only 35% over the last 10 games.

Pacers: Domantas Sabonis missed his second consecutive game because of health and safety protocols. Sabonis is expected to miss Friday's game against Chicago as well. Oshae Brissett (sore right ankle) and Goga Bitzade (sore right foot) also were sidelined.

No. 5 Indiana ends game on 14-0 run, beats Minnesota

BY EVAN GERIKE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Aleksa Gulbe scored a career-high 28 points and No. 5 Indiana closed the game on a 14-0 run to complete an 80-70 comeback victory over Minnesota on Thursday night.

Gulbe was 4 for 4 from 3-point range, Grace Berger had 19 points, 10 rebounds and eight assists, and Nicole Cardaño-Hillary added 14 for the Hoosiers (15-3).

"We're still a team that's trying to create some momentum for ourselves," Indiana coach Teri Moren said. "We're playing a lot of different pieces. We're playing different than we're used to."

Gulbe surpassed her previous high of 22 points, set against Norfolk State on Nov. 16.

"We rely on her on the defensive end, but really on the offensive end too," Berger said. "She's been huge for us, especially these last few games."

Sara Scalia scored 26 points for the Gophers (10-13), including shooting 7 for 12 from 3-point range, but couldn't hit two late 3-pointers to bring her team back as Indiana's final run closed out the last 4:26 of the game.

Berger said she was able to take charge late in the game because of Moren's trust in her. Berger scored 11 of her points in the second half, adding five rebounds and five assists in the fourth quarter.

CUBS

Madison recovered to quickly re-take the lead on a Cahall 3-pointer at the end of the quarter but still led only 27-25 after three. The Cubs briefly pushed the lead back to seven points (35-28) early in the fourth but Burgher led the Cats back, tying the game 36-26 on a basket with 1:17 to go.

Burgher's bucket proved to be the final points for either team until the end of regulation. North Harrison missed a free throw that could have won the game with 29 seconds left and Taylor Lynch's game-winning 3-point attempt for Madison at the buzzer rimmed out.

But rather than be discouraged, Madison seemed re-energized by the extra session and came back onto the floor all smiles. For Bowyer, the extra session was a chance to regroup.

"Most people would say that the team that was down would have the advantage when you get to overtime, but when I got to the overtime I was thinking 'It's a new game. So game on,' " Bowyer said. "I was more energized. I'm like 'OK, we out-lasted that run, now it's our turn.' I was excited because I knew that we had this."

Bowyer turned out to be right. Traylor picked off two North Harrison passes and converted them into four-straight points to put Madison ahead 40-36 and, after Burgher scored on the other end, Cahall hit two free throws with 31 seconds to go to push the lead back to four. A steal and two more free throws by Cahall with 13 seconds left iced the win.

Madison's offense never truly got into gear with the Cubs hitting only 14-of-53 (26%) for the game and although North Harrison ended up shooting nearly 50% in the second half, it was Madison's defense that was the difference in the game. The Cubs forced 20 turnovers — 14 of which came on steals — and outscored the Cats 27-2 off turnovers alone.

"Sometimes shooting doesn't go the way you want it to and you're not as locked in, but I felt like defensively that's what helped us win this game today," Bowyer said.

Cahall scored 18 points and also had five rebounds and six steals to lead the Cubs. Lynch scored nine points and had eight rebounds, and Traylor had eight points and six rebounds.

Burgher scored 22 points and had 13 rebounds to lead North Harrison. Sydney Smith added 12 points.

Madison will now take on Silver Creek in the semifinals, which were postponed from Friday night to tonight. Silver Creek whipped Scottsburg 62-36 on Wednesday and beat Madison by 33 points just three weeks ago, but Bowyer believes her team is ready for the challenge.

"We've already played them so that already gives us an advantage. I feel like our coaching staff does a good job of getting our girls prepared and we're gonna get them ready, no matter when we play," Bowyer said. "I'm excited to get a second chance at it. I'm hungry for it and I know the girls are hungry for it. So I think that gives us a little extra motivation."

HANOVER

Hanover, now 9-8 overall, is 6-6 in league play and tied with Anderson in fifth place. The Panthers return to action today when they host Earlham as part of a women's/men's doubleheader. Hanover then hosts Franklin on Wednesday.

HANOVER MEN FALL TO ANDERSON

Anderson slowed Hanover's run to a conference title with a 91-71 win at home in men's basketball on Wednesday.

Hanover entered the game with a chance to all but end any drama with a win over the second-place Ravens.

Despite the loss, the Panthers still hold a two-game lead over Anderson with five games to play.
